

Your Event Solutions (YES) launches new website

8 MAY 2008, Coppell, TX --Dallas, Texas area based, Your Event Solutions Inc., (YES) announces the launch of a new web site, www.yesdfw.com, designed to provide clients and prospective customers with information regarding solutions that YES can offer. Company president and owner, Ms. Kelley Parlier commented, "Our website serves to illustrate our capabilities and competencies available to clients seeking a comprehensive and professional events planning group. We provide support and services from the simplest to very complex tradeshows, events, marketing and all associated components both on a domestic and international scope."

Prior to forming YES in 2006, Kelley Parlier identified an opportunity within the aviation industry to provide the highest level of professional planning, tradeshow assistance and marketing management services. Parlier applied her previous background and experience gained working in the helicopter airframe and engine manufacturing business to establish the company. The result is a business that provides a complete turn-key package of full service, professional events planning as well as communication and marketing services that many companies and associations may not have the expertise to support internally. The company's growing client list includes not only aviation related specialties, but other business and associations seeking this type of professional service. Parlier, a licensed pilot, holds a degree in Communications and Aviation Services from the University of North Dakota.

Your Event Solutions, Inc. (YES) is a full-service, professional event-planning and communications company. We support companies and associations that value outsourcing highly-specialized duties, such as planning and managing tradeshows, organizing corporate and association meetings, and project based consultation services. YES assures a single-point of contact from start to finish on each project and is dedicated to providing seamless solutions to our clients' needs and stated objectives.
